THE SONG

(To Rudyard Kipling)

A

I

The Sword

Singing—

*The voice of the Sword from the heart
of the Sword*

Clanging imperious

Forth from Time's battlements

In the beginning,

Ere <sup>Odin</sup> ~~God~~ inspired Himself

Into the clay thing

Thumbed to His image,

The vacant, the naked shell

Soon to be Man :

THE SONG OF

Thoughtful He pondered it,
Prone there and impotent,
Fragile, inviting Attack and discomfiture :
Then, with a smile—
As He heard in the Thunder
That laughed over ~~Eden~~ <sup>Midgard</sup>
The voice of the Trumpet,
The iron Beneficence,
Calling His dooms
To the Winds of the world—
Stooping, He drew
On the sand with His finger
A shape for a sign
Of His way to the eyes
That in wonder should waken,
For a proof of His will
To the breaking intelligence :

THE SWORD

That was the birth of me :

I am the Sword.

the Messiah?
the apple?
the snake?
the sword!

Hard and bleak, keen and cruel,

Short-hilted, long-shafted,

I froze into steel :

And the blood of my elder,

His hand on the hafts of me,

Sprang like a wave

In the wind, as the sense

Of his strength grew to ecstasy,

Glowed like a coal

At the throat of the furnace,

As he knew me and named me

The War-Thing, the Comrade,

Father of honour

And giver of kingship,

The fame-smith, the song-master, and the word of all

All gather,

THE SONG OF

Bringer of women
On fire at his hands
For the pride of fulfilment,
Priest (saith the <sup>All-father</sup> Lord)
Of his marriage with victory.
Ho ! then, the Trumpet,
Handmaid of heroes,
Calling the peers
To the place of espousal !
Ho ! then, the splendour
And sheen of my ministry,
Clothing the earth
With a livery of lightnings !
Ho ! then, the music
Of battles in onset
And ruining armours,
And God's gift returning
In fury to God !

THE SWORD

Glittering and keen
As the song of the winter stars,
Ho! then, the sound
Of my voice, the implacable
Angel of Destiny!—
I am the Sword.

Heroes, my children,
Follow, O follow me,
Follow, exulting
In the great light that breaks
From the sacred companionship:
Thrust through the fatuous,
Thrust through the fungous brood
Spawned in my shadow
And gross with my gift! —
Thrust through, and hearken,
O hark, to the Trumpet,

THE SONG OF

The Virgin of Battles,
Calling, still calling you
Into the Presence,
Sons of the Judgment,
Pure wafts of the Will ! Yahweh

Edged to annihilate,
Hilted with government,
Follow, O follow me
Till the waste places
All the grey globe over
Ooze, as the honeycomb
Drips, with the sweetness
Distilled of my strength :
And, teeming in peace
Through the wrath of my coming,
They give back in beauty
The dread and the anguish
They had of me visitant !

THE SWORD

Follow, O follow, then,
Heroes, my harvesters !
Where the tall grain is ripe
Thrust in your sickles :
Stripped and adust
In a stubble of empire,
Scything and binding
The full sheaves of sovrainty :
Thus, O thus gloriously,
Shall you fulfil yourselves :
Thus, O thus mightily,
Show yourselves sons of mine—
Yea, and win grace of me :
I am the Sword,

I am the feast-maker :
Hark, through a noise
Of the screaming of eagles,

THE SONG OF

Hark how the Trumpet,
The mistress of mistresses,
Calls, silver-throated
And stern, where the tables
Are spread, and the work
Of the ~~Lord~~<sup>All Father</sup> is in hand !

Driving the darkness,
Even as the banners
And spears of the Morning ;
Sifting the nations,
The slag from the metal,
The waste and the weak
From the fit and the strong ;
Fighting the brute,
The abysmal Fecundity ;
Checking the gross,
Multitudinous blunders,
The groping, the purblind

THE SWORD

Excesses in service,
Of the Womb universal,
The absolute Drudge ;
Changing the charactry
Carved on the World,
The miraculous gem
In the seal-ring that burns
On the hand of the Master—
Yea ! and authority
Flames through the dim,
Unappeasable Grisliness
Prone down the nethermost
Chasms of the Void ;
Clear singing, clean slicing ;
Sweet spoken, soft finishing ;
Making death beautiful,
Life but a coin
To be staked in the pastime

THE SONG OF THE SWORD

Whose playing is more
Than the transfer of being ;
Arch-anarch, chief builder,
Prince and evangelist,
I am the Will of Odin ~~God~~ :
I am the Sword.

The Sword
Singing—
The voice of the Sword from the heart
of the Sword
Clanging majestical,
As from the starry-staired
Courts of the primal Supremacy,
His high, irresistible song.

LONDON
VOLUNTARIES
(To Charles Whibley)

Andante con moto

FORTH from the dust and din,
The crush, the heat, the many-spotted glare,
The odour and sense of life and lust aflare,
The wrangle and jangle of unrests,
Let us take horse, dear heart, take horse and win—
As from swart August to the green lap of May—
To quietness and the fresh and fragrant breasts
Of the still, delicious night, not yet aware
In any of her innumerable nests
Of that first sudden splash of dawn,
Clear, sapphirine, luminous, large,
Which tells that soon the flowing springs of day

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

In deep and ever deeper eddies drawn
Forward and up, in wider and wider way
Shall float the sands and brim the shores
On this our haunch of Earth, as round she roars
And spins into the outlook of the Sun
(The Lord's first gift, the Lord's especial charge)
With light, with living light, from marge to marge,
Until the course He set and staked be run.

Through street and square, through square and street,
Each with his home-grown quality of dark
And violated silence, loud and fleet,
Waylaid by a merry ghost at every lamp,
The hansom wheels and plunges. Hark, O hark,
Sweet, how the old mare's bit and chain

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Ring back a rough refrain
Upon the marked and cheerful tramp
Of her four shoes ! Here is the Park,
And O the languid midsummer wafts adust,
The tired midsummer blooms !
O the mysterious distances, the glooms
Romantic, the august
And solemn shapes ! At night this City of Trees
Turns to a tryst of vague and strange
And monstrous Majesties,
Let loose from some dim underworld to range
These terrene vistas till their twilight sets :
When, dispossessed of wonderfulness, they stand
Beggared and common, plain to all the land
For stooks of leaves ! And lo ! the wizard hour
Whose shining, silent sorcery hath such power !
Still, still the streets, between their carcanets

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Of linking gold, are avenues of sleep :
But see how gable ends and parapets
In gradual beauty and significance Emerge ! And did you hear
That little twitter-and-cheep,
Breaking inordinately loud and clear
On this still, spectral, exquisite atmosphere ?
'Tis a first nest at matins ! And behold
A rakehell eat—how furtive and acold !
A spent witch homing from some infamous dance—
Obscene, quick-trotting, see her tip and fade
Through shadowy railings into a pit of shade !
And lo ! a little wind and shy,
The smell of ships (that earnest of romance),
A sense of space and water, and thereby
A lamplit bridge ouching the troubled sky,
And look, O look ! a tangle of silver gleams

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

And dusky lights, our River and all his dreams,
His dreams of a dead past that cannot die !

What miracle is happening in the air,
Charging the very texture of the gray
With something luminous and rare ?

The night goes out like an ill-parcelled fire,
And, as one lights a candle, it is day.

The extinguisher that fain would strut for spire
On the formal little church is not yet green
Across the water : but the house-tops nigher,
The corner-lines, the chimneys—look how clean,
How new, how naked ! See the batch of boats,
Here at the stairs, washed in the fresh-sprung beam !

And those are barges that were goblin floats,
Black, hag-steered, fraught with devilry and dream !
And in the piles the water frolics clear,

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

The ripples into loose rings wander and flee,
And we—we can behold that could but hear
The ancient River singing as he goes
New-mailed in morning to the ancient Sea.
The gas burns lank and jaded in its glass :
The old Ruffian soon shall yawn himself awake,
And light his pipe, and shoulder his tools, and take
His hobnailed way to work !

Let us too pass :

Through these long blindfold rows
Of casements staring blind to right and left,
Each with his gaze turned inward on some piece
Of life in death's own likeness—Life bereft
Of living looks as by the Great Release
(Perchance of shadow-shapes from shadow-shows),
Whose upshot all men know yet no man knows.

Reach upon reach of burial—so they feel,

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

These colonies of dreams ! And as we steal
Homeward together, but for the buxom breeze
That frolics at our heel,
Greeting the town with news of the summer seas,
We might — thus awed, thus lonely that we are —

Be wandering some depopulated star,
Some world of memories and unbroken graves,
So broods the abounding Silence near and far :
Till even your footfall craves
Forgiveness of the majesty it braves.

II

Scherzando

Down through the ancient Strand
The Spirit of October, mild and boon
And sauntering, takes his way
This golden end of afternoon,
As though the corn stood yellow in all the land
And the ripe apples dropped to the harvest-moon.

Lo ! the round sun, half down the western slope—
Seen as along an unglazed telescope—
Lingers and lolls, loth to be done with day :
Gifting the long, lean, lanky street
And its abounding confluences of being
With aspects generous and bland :
Making a thousand harnesses to shine

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

As with new ore from some enchanted mine,
And every horse's coat so full of sheen
He looks new-tailored, and every 'bus feels clean,
And never a hansom but is worth the feeing ;
And every jeweller within the pale
Offers a real Arabian Night for sale ;
And even the roar
Of the strong streams of toil that pause and pour
Eastward and westward sounds suffused—
Seems as it were bemused
And blurred, and like the speech
Of lazy seas upon a lotus-eating beach—
With this enchanted lustrousness,
This mellow magic, that (as a man's caress
Brings back to some faded face beloved before
A heavenly shadow of the grace it wore
Ere the poor eyes were minded to beseech)
Old things transfigures, and you hail and bless

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Their looks of long-lapsed loveliness once more ;
Till the sedate and mannered elegance
Of Clement's is all tinctured with romance ;
The while the fanciful, formal, finicking charm
Of Bride's, that madrigal in stone,
Glows flushed and warm
And beauteous with a beauty not its own ;
And the high majesty of Paul's
Uplifts a voice of living light, and calls—
Calls to his millions to behold and see How goodly this his London Town can be !

For earth and sky and air
Are golden everywhere,
And golden with a gold so suave and fine
The looking on it lifts the heart like wine.
Trafalgar Square
(The fountains volleying golden glaze)

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Gleams like an angel-market. High aloft
Over his couchant Lions in a haze
Shimmering and bland and soft,
A dust of chrysoprase,
Our Sailor takes the golden gaze
Of the saluting sun, and flames superb
As once he flamed it on his ocean round.
The dingy dreariness of the picture-place,
Turned very nearly bright,
Takes on a certain dismal grace,
And shows not all a scandal to the ground.
The very blind man pottering on the kerb,
Among the posies and the ostrich feathers
And the rude voices touched with all the weathers
Of all the varying year,
Shares in the universal alms of light.
The windows, with their fleeting, flickering fires,
The height and spread of frontage shining sheer,

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

The glistening signs, the rejoicing roofs and spires—

'Tis El Dorado—El Dorado plain,
The Golden City ! And when a girl goes by,
Look ! as she turns her glancing head,
A call of gold is floated from her ear !
Golden, all golden ! In a golden glory,
Long lapsing down a golden coasted sky,
The day not dies but seems Dispersed in wafts and drifts of gold, and shed
Upon a past of golden song and story
And memories of gold and golden dreams.

III

Largo e mesto

Out of the poisonous East,
Over a continent of blight,
Like a maleficent Influence released
From the most squalid cellarage of hell,
The Wind-Fiend, the abominable—
The hangman wind that tortures temper and light—
Comes slouching, sullen and obscene,
Hard on the skirts of the embittered night :
And in a cloud unclean
Of excremental humours, roused to strife
By the operation of some ruinous change
Wherever his evil mandate run and range
Into a dire intensity of life,

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

A craftsman at his bench, he settles down
To the grim job of throttling London Town.

And, by a jealous lightlessness beset
That might have oppressed the dragons of old time
Crunching and groping in the abysmal slime,
A cave of cut-throat thoughts and villainous dreams,
Hag-rid and crying with cold and dirt and wet,
The afflicted city, prone from mark to mark
In shameful occultation, seems
A nightmare labyrinthine, dim and drifting,
With wavering gulfs and antic heights and shifting
Rent in the stuff of a material dark
Wherein the lamplight, scattered and sick and pale,
Shows like the leper's living blotch of bale :
Uncoiling monstrous into street on street

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Paven with perils, teeming with mischance,
Where man and beast go blindfold and in dread,
Working with oaths and threats and faltering feet
Somewhither in the hideousness ahead ;
Working through wicked airs and deadly dews
That make the laden robber grin askance
At the good places in his black romance,
And the poor, loitering harlot rather choose
Go pinched and pined to bed
Than lurk and shiver and curse her wretched way
From arch to arch, scouting some threepenny prey.

Forgot his dawns and far-flushed afterglows,
His green garlands and windy eyots forgot,
The old Father-River flows,
His watchfires cores of menace in the gloom,
As he came oozing from the Pit, and bore,
Sunk in his filthily transfigured sides,

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Shoals of dishonoured dead to tumble and rot
In the squalor of the universal shore :
His voices sounding through the gruesome air
As from the ferry where the Boat of Doom
With her blaspheming cargo reels and rides :
The while his children, the brave ships,
No more adventurous and fair
Nor tripping it light of heel as home-bound brides,
But infamously enchanted,
Huddle together in the foul eclipse,
Or feel their course by inches desperately,
As through a tangle of alleys murder-haunted,
From sinister reach to reach—out—out—to sea.

And Death the while—

Death with his well-worn, lean, professional smile,
Death in his threadbare working trim—

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Comes to your bedside, unannounced and bland,
And with expert, inevitable hand
Feels at your windpipe, fingers you in the lung,
Or flicks the clot well into the labouring heart :
Thus signifying unto old and young,
However hard of mouth or wild of whim,
'Tis time—'tis time by his ancient watch—to part
With books and women and talk and drink and art :

And you go humbly after him
To a mean suburban lodging : on the way
To what or where
Not Death, who is old and very wise, can say :
And you—how should you care
So long as, unreclaimed of hell,
The Wind-Fiend, the insufferable,
Thus vicious and thus patient sits him down
To the black job of burking London Town ?

IV

Allegro maestoso

SPRING winds that blow
As over leagues of myrtle-blooms and may ;
Bevies of spring clouds trooping slow,
Like matrons heavy-bosomed and aglow
With the mild and placid pride of increase ! Nay,
What makes this insolent and comely stream
Of appetence, this freshet of desire
(Milk from the wild breasts of the wilful Day !),
Down Piccadilly dance and murmur and gleam
In genial wave on wave and gyre on gyre ?
Why does that nymph unparalleled splash and churn
The wealth of her enchanted urn
Till, over-billowing all between

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Her cheerful margents grey and living green,
It floats and wanders, glittering and fleeing,
An estuary of the joy of being ?

Why should the buxom leafage of the Park Touch to an ecstasy the act of seeing ?

—As if my paramour, my bride of brides,
Lingering and flushed, mysteriously abides
In some dim, eye-proof angle of odorous dark,
Some smiling nook of green-and-golden shade,
In the divine conviction robed and crowned
The globe fulfils his immemorial round
But as the marrying-place of all things made !

There is no man, this deifying day,
But feels the primal blessing in his blood.
The sacred impulse of the May Brightening like sex made sunshine through her veins,

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

There is no woman but disdains
To vail the ensigns of her womanhood.
None but, rejoicing, flaunts them as she goes,
Bounteous in looks of her delicious best,
On her inviolable quest :
These with their hopes, with their sweet secrets those,
But all desirable and frankly fair,
As each were keeping some most prosperous tryst,
And in the knowledge went imparadised.
For look ! a magical influence everywhere,
Look how the liberal and transfiguring air
Washes this inn of memorable meetings,
This centre of ravishments and gracious greetings,
Till, through its jocund loveliness of length
A tidal-race of lust from shore to shore,
A brimming reach of beauty met with strength,
It shines and sounds like some miraculous dream,

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

Some vision multitudinous and agleam,
Of happiness as it shall be evermore !

Praise God for giving
Through this His messenger among the days
His word the life He gave is thrice-worth living !
For Pan, the bountiful, imperious Pan—
Not dead, not dead, as dreamers feigned,
But the lush genius of a million Mays
Renewing his beneficent endeavour !—
Still reigns and triumphs, as he hath triumphed and reigned
Since in the dim blue dawn of time
The universal ebb-and-flow began,
To sound his ancient music, and prevails
By the persuasion of his mighty rhyme
Here in this radiant and immortal street
Lavishly and omnipotently as ever

LONDON VOLUNTARIES

In the open hills, the undissembling dales,
The laughing-places of the juvenile earth.
For lo ! the wills of man and woman meet,
Meet and are moved, each unto each endeared
As once in Eden's prodigal bowers befell,
To share his shameless, elemental mirth
In one great act of faith, while deep and strong,
Incomparably nerved and cheered,
The enormous heart of London joys to beat
To the measures of his rough, majestic song :
The lewd, perennial, overmastering spell
That keeps the rolling universe ensphered
And life and all for which life lives to long
Wanton and wondrous and for ever well.

AND RHYTHMS

I

WHERE forlorn sunsets flare and fade
On desolate sea and lonely sand,
Out of the silence and the shade
What is the voice of strange command
Calling you still, as friend calls friend
With love that cannot brook delay,
To rise and follow the ways that wend
Over the hills and far away?

Hark in the city, street on street
A roaring reach of death and life,
Of vortices that clash and fleet
And ruin in appointed strife,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Hark to it calling, calling clear,
Calling until you cannot stay
From dearer things than your own most dear
Over the hills and far away.

Out of the sound of ebb and flow,
Out of the sight of lamp and star,
It calls you where the good winds blow,
And the unchanging meadows are:
From faded hopes and hopes agleam,
It calls you, calls you night and day
Beyond the dark into the dream
Over the hills and far away.

II

A DESOLATE shore,
The sinister seduction of the Moon,
The menace of the irreclaimable Sea.

Flaunting, tawdry and grim,
From cloud to cloud along her beat,
Leering her battered and inveterate leer,
She signals where he prowls in the dark alone,
Her horrible old man,
Mumbling old oaths and warming
His villainous old bones with villainous talk—
The secrets of their grisly housekeeping
Since they went out upon the pad

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

In the first twilight of self-conscious Time :
Growling, obscene and hoarse,
Tales of unnumbered Ships,
Goodly and strong, Companions of the Advance
In some vile alley of the night
Waylaid and bludgeoned—Dead.

Deep cellared in primeval ooze,
Ruined, dishonoured, spoiled,
They lie where the lean water-worm
Crawls free of their secrets, and their broken sides
Bulge with the slime of life. Thus they abide,
Thus fouled and desecrate,
The summons of the Trumpet, and the while These Twain, their murderers,
Unravined, imperturbable, unsubdued,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Hang at the heels of their children—She aloft
As in the shining streets,
He as in ambush at some fetid stair.

The stalwart Ships,
The beautiful and bold adventurers !
Stationed out yonder in the isle,
The tall Policeman,
Flashing his bull's-eye, as he peers
About him in the ancient vacancy,
Tells them this way is safety—this way home.

(To R. F. B.)

WE are the Choice of the Will: God, when He gave the word

That called us into line, set in our hand a sword;

Set us a sword to wield none else could lift and draw,

And bade us forth to the sound of the trumpet of the Law.

East and west and north, wherever the battle grew,

As men to a feast we fared, the work of the Will to do.

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Bent upon vast beginnings, bidding anarchy cease—

(Had we hacked it to the Pit, we had left it a place of peace!)—

Marching, building, sailing, pillar of cloud or fire, Sons of the Will, we fought the fight of the Will,
our sire.

Road was never so rough that we left its purpose dark;

Stark was ever the sea, but our ships were yet more stark;

We tracked the winds of the world to the steps of their very thrones;

The secret parts of the world were salted with our bones;

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Till now the name of names, England, the name of might,

Flames from the austral bounds to the ends of the northern night;

And the call of her morning drum goes in a girdle of sound,

Like the voice of the sun in song, the great globe round and round;

And the shadow of her flag, when it shouts to the mother-breeze,

Floats from shore to shore of the universal seas;

And the loneliest death is fair with a memory of her flowers,

And the end of the road to Hell with the sense of her dews and showers!

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Who says that we shall pass, or the fame of us fade and die,

While the living stars fulfil their round in the living sky ?

For the sire lives in his sons, and they pay their father's debt,

And the Lion has left a whelp wherever his claw was set :

And the Lion in his whelps, his whelps that none shall brave,

Is but less strong than Time and the all-devouring Grave.

IV

IT came with the threat of a waning moon
And the wail of an ebbing tide,
But many a woman has lived for less,
And many a man has died ;
For life upon life took hold and passed,
Strong in a fate set free,
Out of the deep, into the dark,
On for the years to be.

Between the gleam of a waning moon
And the song of an ebbing tide,
Chance upon chance of love and death
Took wing for the world so wide.

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Leaf out of leaf is the way of the land,
Wave out of wave of the sea ;
And who shall reckon what lives may live
In the life that we bade to be ?

v

WHY, my heart, do we love her so?
(Geraldine, Geraldine!)—
Why does the great sea ebb and flow?
Why does the round world spin?
Geraldine, Geraldine,
Bid me my life renew,
What is it worth unless I win,
Love—love and you?

Why, my heart, when we speak her name
(Geraldine, Geraldine!),
Throbs the word like a flinging flame?—
Why does the spring begin?

Geraldine, Geraldine,
Bid me indeed to be,
Open your heart and take us in,
Love—love and me.

VI

SPACE and dread and the dark—
Over a livid stretch of sky
Cloud-monsters crawling like a funeral train
Of huge primeval presences
Stooping beneath the weight
Of some enormous, rudimentary grief ;
While in the haunting loneliness
The far sea waits and wanders, with a sound
As of the trailing skirts of Destiny
Passing unseen

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

To some immitigable end
With her grey henchman, Death.

What larve, what spectre is this Thrilling the wilderness to life
As with the bodily shape of Fear?
What but a desperate sense,
A strong foreboding of those dim,
Interminable continents, forlorn
And many-silenced in a dusk
Inviolable utterly, and dead
As the poor dead it huddles and swarms and styes
In hugger-mugger through eternity?

Life—life—let there be life !
Better a thousand times the roaring hours
When wave and wind,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Like the Arch-Murderer in flight
From the Avenger at his heel,
Storm through the desolate fastnesses
And wild waste places of the world !

Life—give me life until the end,
That at the very top of being,
The battle-spirit shouting in my blood,
Out of the reddest hell of the fight
I may be snatched and flung
Into the everlasting lull,
The immortal, incommunicable dream.

VII

THERE 's a regret
So grinding, so immitigably sad,
Remorse thereby feels tolerant, even glad. . . .
Do you not know it yet?

For deeds undone
Rankle, and snarl, and hunger for their due
Till there seems naught so despicable as you
In all the grin o' the sun.

Like an old shoe
The sea spurns and the land abhors, you lie
About the beach of Time, till by-and-by Death, that derides you too—

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Death, as he goes

His ragman's round, espies you, where you stray,
With half-an-eye, and kicks you out of his way ;
And then—and then, who knows

But the kind Grave

Turns on you, and you feel the convict Worm,
In that black bridewell working out his term,
Hanker and grope and crave ?

‘ Poor fool that might—

That might, yet would not, dared not, let this be,
Think of it, here and thus made over to me
In the implacable night ! ’

And writhing, fain

And like a lover, he his fill shall take

Where no triumphant memory lives to make
His obscene victory vain.

(To J. A. C.)

FRESH from his fastnesses
Wholesome and spacious,
The north wind, the mad huntsman,
Halloos on his white hounds
Over the grey, roaring
Reaches and ridges,
The forest of ocean,
The chace of the world.
Hark to the peal
Of the pack in full cry,
As he thongs them before him
Swarming voluminous,
Weltering, wide-wallowing,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Till in a ruining
Chaos of energy,
Hurled on their quarry,
They crash into foam !

Old Indefatigable,
Time's right-hand man, the sea
Laughs as in joy
From his millions of wrinkles :
Laughs that his destiny,
Great with the greatness
Of triumphing order,
Shows as a dwarf
By the strength of his heart
And the might of his hands.

Master of masters,
O maker of heroes,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Thunder the brave,
Irresistible message :—
' Life is worth living
Through every grain of it
From the foundations
To the last edge
Of the cornerstone, death.'

‘ As like the Woman as you can ’—

(Thus the New Adam was beguiled)—

‘ So shall you touch the Perfect Man ’—

(God in the Garden heard and smiled).

‘ Your father perished with his day :

‘ A clot of passions fierce and blind

‘ He fought, he slew, he hacked his way :

‘ Your muscles, Child, must be of mind.

‘ The Brute that lurks and irks within,

‘ How, till you have him gagged and bound,

‘ Escape the foulest form of Sin ? ’

(God in the Garden laughed and frowned).

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

- ‘So vile, so rank, the bestial mood
‘In which the race is bid to be,
‘It wrecks the Rarer Womanhood :
‘Live, therefore, you, for Purity !

- ‘Take for your mate no buxom croup,
‘No girl all grace and natural will :
‘To make her happy were to stoop
‘From light to dark, from Good to Ill.

- ‘Choose one of whom your grosser make’— (God in the Garden laughed outright)—
‘The true refining touch may take ‘Till both attain Life’s highest height.

- ‘There, equal, purged of soul and sense,
‘Beneficent, high-thinking, just,
‘Beyond the appeal of Violence,
‘Incapable of common Lust,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

- ‘ In mental Marriage still prevail ’—
(God in the Garden hid His face)—

‘ In Which shall culminate the race.

MIDSUMMER midnight skies,
Midsummer midnight influences and airs,
The shining sensitive silver of the sea
Touched with the strange-hued blazonings of dawn:
And all so solemnly still I seem to hear
The breathing of Life and Death,
The secular Accomplices,
Renewing the visible miracle of the world.

The wistful stars
Shine like good memories. The young morning wind
Blows full of unforgotten hours

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

As over a region of roses. Life and Death
Sound on—sound on. . . . And the night magical,
Troubled yet comforting, thrills
As if the Enchanted Castle at the heart
Of the wood's dark wonderment
Swung wide his valves and filled the dim sea-banks
With exquisite visitants :
Words fiery-hearted yet, dreams and desires
With living looks intolerable, regrets
Whose voice comes as the voice of an only child
Heard from the grave : shapes of a Might-Have-Been—
Beautiful, miserable, distraught—
The Law no man may baffle denied and slew.

The spell-bound ships stand as at gaze
To let the marvel by. The grey road glooms . . .

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Glimmers . . . goes out . . . and there, O there where it fades,
What grace, what glamour, what wild will,
Transfigure the shadows? Whose,
Heart of my heart, Soul of my soul, but yours?

Ghosts—ghosts—the sapphirine air
Teems with them even to the gleaming ends
Of the wild day-spring! Ghosts,
Everywhere—everywhere—till I and you
At last—dear love, at last!—
Are in the dreaming, even as Life and Death,
Twin-ministers of the unoriginal Will.

GULLS in an aëry morrice
Gleam and vanish and gleam . . .
The full sea, sleepily basking,
Dreams under skies of dream.

Gulls in an aëry morrice
Circle and swoop and close . . .
Fuller and ever fuller
The rose of the morning blows.

Gulls in an aëry morrice
Frolicking float and fade . . .
O the way of a bird in the sunshine,
The way of a man with a maid !

SOME starlit garden grey with dew,
Some chamber flushed with wine and fire,
What matters where, so I and you
Are worthy our desire ?

Behind, a past that scolds and jeers
For ungirt loin and lamp unlit ;
In front the unmanageable years,
The trap upon the pit ;

Think on the shame of dreams for deeds,
The scandal of unnatural strife,
The slur upon immortal needs,
The treason done to life :

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Arise ! no more a living lie
And with me quicken and control
A memory that shall magnify
The universal Soul.

(To James McNeill Whistler)

UNDER a stagnant sky,
Gloom out of gloom uncoiling into gloom,
The River, jaded and forlorn,
Welters and wanders wearily—wretchedly—on ;
Yet in and out among the ribs
Of the old skeleton bridge, as in the piles
Of some dead lake-built city, full of skulls,
Worm-worn, rat-riddled, mouldy with memories,
Lingers to babble, to a broken tune
(Once, O the unvoiced music of my heart !)
So melancholy a soliloquy
It sounds as it might tell
The secret of the unending grief-in-grain,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

The terror of Time and Change and Death,
That wastes this floating, transitory world.

What of the incantation
That forced the huddled shapes on yonder shore
To take and wear the night
Like a material majesty ?
That touched the shafts of wavering fire
About this miserable welter and wash—
(River, O River of Journeys, River of Dreams!—)
Into long, shining signals from the panes
Of an enchanted pleasure-house
Where life and life might live life lost in life
For ever and evermore ?

O Death ! O Change ! O Time !
Without you, O the insufferable eyes
Of these poor Might-Have-Beens,
These fatuous, ineffectual Yesterdays !

TIME and the Earth—
The old Father and Mother—
Their teeming accomplished,
Their purpose fulfilled,
Close with a smile
For a moment of kindness
Ere for the winter
They settle to sleep.

Failing yet gracious,
Slow pacing, soon homing,
A patriarch that strolls
Through the tents of his children,
The Sun, as he journeys
His round on the lower

Ascents of the blue,
Washes the roofs
And the hillsides with clarity ;
Charms the dark pools
Till they break into pictures ;
Scatters magnificent Alms to the beggar trees ;
Touches the mist-folk
That crowd to his escort
Into translucencies
Radiant and ravishing,
As with the visible
Spirit of Summer
Gloriously vaporised,
Visioned in gold.

Love, though the fallen leaf

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

And the loud, loitering
Footfall of darkness
Sign, to the heart
Of the passage of destiny,
Here is the ghost
Of a summer that lived for us,
Here is a promise
Of summers to be.

You played and sang a snatch of song,
A song that all-too well we knew ;
But whither had flown the ancient wrong ;
And was it really I and you ?
O since the end of life 's to live
And pay in pence the common debt,
What should it cost us to forgive
Whose daily task is to forget ?

You babbled in the well-known voice—
Not new, not new, the words you said.
You touched me off that famous poise,
That old effect, of neck and head.

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Dear, was it really you and I ?

In truth the riddle 's ill to read,
So many are the deaths we die

Before we can be dead indeed.

ONE with the ruined sunset,
The strange forsaken sands,
What is it waits and wanders
And signs with desperate hands ?

What is it calls in the twilight—
Calls as its chance were vain ?
The cry of a gull sent seaward
Or the voice of an ancient pain ?

The red ghost of the sunset,
It walks them as its own,
These dreary and desolate reaches . . .
But O that it walked alone !

CARMEN PATIBULARE

(To H. S.)

TREE, Old Tree of the Triple Crook

And the rope of the Black Election,

'Tis the faith of the Fool that a race you rule

Can never achieve perfection :

And 'It's O for the time of the New Sublime

And the better than human way

When the Wolf (poor beast) shall come to his own

And the Rat shall have his day ! '

For Tree, Old Tree of the Triple Beam

And the power of provocation,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

You have cockered the Brute with your dreadful fruit

Till your thought is mere stupration :
And ' It 's how should we rise to be pure and wise,
And how can we choose but fall,
So long as the Hangman makes us dread
And the Noose floats free for all ? '

So Tree, Old Tree of the Triple Coign
And the trick there 's no recalling,
They will haggle and hew till they hack you through
And at last they lay you sprawling :
When ' Hey ! for the hour of the race in flower
And the long good-bye to sin ! '
And ' Ho ! for the fires of Hell gone out
For the want of keeping in ! '

But Tree, Old Tree of the Triple Bough

And the ghastly Dreams that tend you,

Your growth began with the life of Man

And only his death can end you :

They may tug in line at your hempen twine,

They may flourish with axe and saw,

But your taproot drinks of the Sacred Springs

In the living rock of Law.

And Tree, Old Tree of the Triple Fork,

When the spent sun reels and blunders

Down a welkin lit with the flare of the Pit

As it seethes in spate and thunders,

Stern on the glare of the tortured air

Your lines august shall gloom,

And your master-beam be the last thing whelmed

(To M. E. H.)

WHEN you wake in your crib,
You, an inch of experience—
Vaulted about
With the wonder of darkness ;
Wailing and striving
To reach from your feebleness
Something you feel
Will be good to and cherish you,
Something you know
And can rest upon blindly :
O then a hand
(Your mother's, your mother's !)
By the fall of its fingers

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

All knowledge, all power to you,
Out of the dreary,
Discouraging strangenesses
Comes to and masters you,
Takes you, and lovingly
Woos you and soothes you
Back, as you cling to it,
Back to some comforting
Corner of sleep.

So you wake in your bed,
Having lived, having loved :
But the shadows are there,
And the world and its kingdoms
Incredibly faded ;
And you grope in the Terror
Above you and under
For the light, for the warmth,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

The assurance of life ;
But the blasts are ice-born,
And your heart is nigh burst
With the weight of the gloom
And the stress of your strangled
And desperate endeavour :
Sudden a hand—
Mother, O Mother !—
God at His best to you,
Out of the roaring,
Impossible silences,
Falls on and urges you,
Mightily, tenderly,
Forth, as you clutch at it,
Forth to the infinite
Peace of the Grave.

O TIME and Change, they range and range
From sunshine round to thunder!—
They glance and go as the great winds blow,
And the best of our dreams drive under :
For Time and Change estrange, estrange—
And, now they have looked and seen us,
O we that were dear we are all-too near
With the thick of the world between us.

O Death and Time, they chime and chime
Like bells at sunset falling!—
They end the song, they right the wrong,
They set the old echoes calling :

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

For Death and Time bring on the prime
Of God's own chosen weather,
And we lie in the peace of the Great Release
As once in the grass together.

THE shadow of Dawn ;
Stillness and stars and over-mastering dreams
Of Life and Death and Sleep ;
Heard over gleaming flats the old unchanging sound
Of the old unchanging Sea.

My soul and yours—
O hand in hand let us fare forth, two ghosts,
Into the ghostliness,
The infinite and abounding solitudes,
Beyond—O beyond !—beyond . . .

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Here in the porch
Upon the multitudinous silences

WHEN the wind storms by with a shout, and the stern sea-caves

Exult in the tramp and the roar of onsetting waves,

Then, then, it comes home to the heart that the top of life

Is the passion that burns the blood in the act of strife—

Till you pity the dead down there in their quiet graves.

But to drowse with the fen behind and the fog before,

When the rain-rot spreads and a tame sea mumbles
the shore,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Not to adventure, none to fight, no right and no

TREES and the menace of night ;
Then a long, lonely, leaden mere
Backed by a desolate fell
As by a spectral battlement ; and then,
Low-brooding, interpenetrating all,
A vast, grey, listless, inexpressive sky,
So beggared, so incredibly bereft
Of starlight and the song of racing worlds
It might have bellied down upon the Void
Where as in terror Light was beginning to be.

Hist ! In the trees fulfilled of night
(Night and the wretchedness of the sky)

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Is it the hurry of the rain ?
Or the noise of a drive of the Dead
Streaming before the irresistible Will Through the strange dusk of this, the Debateable Land
Between their place and ours ?

Like the forgetfulness
Of the work-a-day world made visible,
A mist falls from the melancholy sky :
A messenger from some lost and loving soul,
Hopeless, far wandered, dazed
Here in the provinces of life,
A great white moth fades miserably past.

Thro' the trees in the strange dead night,
Under the vast dead sky,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Forgetting and forgot, a drift of Dead
Sets to the mystic mere, the phantom

(To P. A. G.)

HERE they trysted, here they strayed,
In the leafage dewy and boon,
Many a man and many a maid,
And the morn was merry June :
'Death is fleet, Life is sweet,'
Sang the blackbird in the may ;
And the hour with flying feet
While they dreamed was yesterday.

Many a maid and many a man
Found the leafage close and boon ;
Many a destiny began—
O the morn was merry June.

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Dead and gone, dead and gone,
(Hark the blackbird in the may !),
Life and Death went hurrying on,
Cheek on cheek—and where were they ?

Dust in dust engendering dust
In the leafage fresh and boon,
Man and maid fulfil their trust—
Still the morn turns merry June.
Mother Life, Father Death
(O the blackbird in the may !),
Each the other's breath for breath,
Fleet the times of the world away.

(To A. C.)

WHAT should the Trees,
Midsummer-manifold, each one,
Voluminous, a labyrinth of life—
What should such things of bulk and multitude
Yield of their huge, unutterable selves,
To the random importunity of Day,
The blabbing journalist ?
Alert to snatch and publish hour by hour
Their greenest hints, their leafiest privacies,
How can he other than endure
The ruminant irony that foists him off

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

With broad-blown falsehoods, or the obviousness
Of laughter flickering back from shine to shade,
And disappearances of homing birds,
And frolicsome freaks
Of little boughs that frisk with little boughs ?

Now, at the word
Of the ancient, sacerdotal Night,
Night of the many secrets, whose effect—
Transfiguring, hierophantic, dread—
Themselves alone may fully apprehend,
They tremble and are changed :
In each, the uncouth individual soul
Looms forth and glooms
Essential, and, their bodily presences
Touched with inordinate significance,
Wearing the darkness like the livery

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Of some mysterious and tremendous guild,
They brood—they menace—they appal :
Or the anguish of prophecy tears them, and they wring

Wild hands of warning in the face
Of some inevitable advance of doom :
Or, each to the other bending, beckoning, signing,
As in some monstrous market-place,
They pass the news, these Gossips of the Prime,
In that old speech their forefathers
Learned on the lawns of Eden, ere they heard
The troubled voice of Eve
Naming the wondering folk of Paradise.

Your sense is sealed, or you should hear them tell
The tale of their dim life and all
Its compost of experience : how the Sun

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Spreads them their daily feast,
Sumptuous, of light, firing them as with wine ;
Of the old Moon's fitful solicitude
And those mild messages the Stars
Descend in silver silences and dews ;
Or what the buxom West,
Wanton with wading in the swirl of the wheat,
Said, and their leafage laughed ;
And how the wet-winged Angel of the Rain
Came whispering . . . whispering ; and the gifts of the Year—
The sting of the stirring sap
Under the wizardry of the young-eyed Spring,
Their summer amplitudes of pomp
And rich autumnal melancholy, and the shrill,
Embittered housewifery
Of the lean Winter : all such things,
And with them all the goodness of the Master

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

Whose right hand blesses with increase and life,
Whose left hand honours with decay and death.

So, under the constraint of Night,
These gross and simple creatures,
Each in his scores of rings, which rings are years,
A servant of the Will.
And God, the Craftsman, as He walks
The floor of His workshop, hearkens, full of cheer
In thus accomplishing
The aims of His miraculous artistry.

WHAT have I done for you,
England, my England ?
What is there I would not do,

With your glorious eyes austere,
As the Lord were walking near,
Whispering terrible things and dear
As the Song on your bugles blown,

    To the Song on your bugles blown,
    England—
    Down the years on your bugles blown ?

Ever the faith endures,
    England, my England :—
‘Take and break us : we are yours,
    ‘England, my own !
‘Life is good, and joy runs high
‘Between English earth and sky :
‘Death is death ; but we shall die
    ‘To the Song on your bugles blown,
    ‘England—
    ‘To the stars on your bugles blown !’

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

They call you proud and hard,
England, my England :
You with worlds to watch and ward,
England, my own !
You whose mailed hand keeps the keys
Of such teeming destinies
You could know nor dread nor ease
Were the Song on your bugles blown,
England,
Round the Pit on your bugles blown !

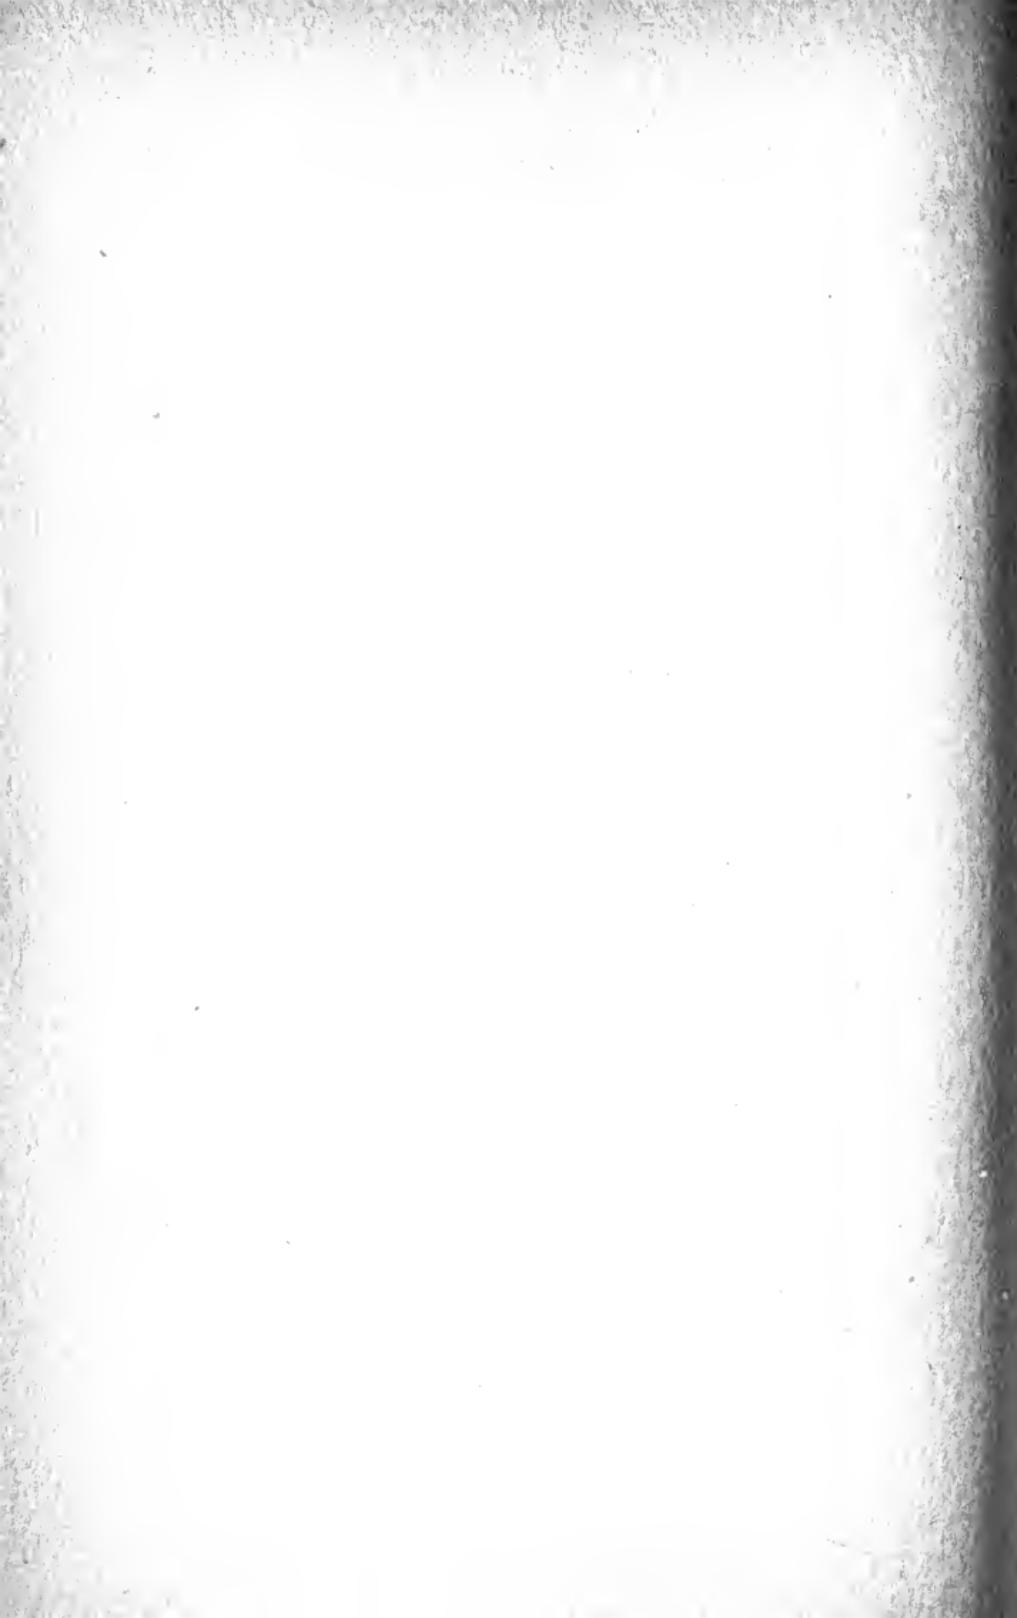

Mother of Ships whose might,
England, my England,
Is the fierce old Sea's delight,
England, my own,
Chosen daughter of the Lord,
Spouse-in-Chief of the ancient Sword,

RHYMES AND RHYTHMS

There 's the menace of the Word
In the Song on your bugles blown,
England—
Out of heaven on your bugles blown !

The SPECTATOR.—‘This is one of the most remarkable volumes of literary criticism—in more senses than one it is the most striking—that have appeared for a number of years. Mr. Henley has been known for a considerable time as one of the most fearless, if not also as one of the most uncompromising, of art critics, the sworn foe of conventionality in “paint” and of flabby timidity in writing the truth about it. More recently he published a volume of poems, full of character, and in which "our lady of pain" figured as a reality of the writer's experience, not as a mere Swinburnian phantom. And now in this volume of Views and Reviews he figures as a prose critic in literature. . . . His book is not so much one of literary criticism, in the ordinary and proper sense of the word, as of brilliant table-talk. . . . Taken altogether, Views and Reviews will provoke as much censure as commendation, for whatever may be Mr. Henley's faults, a commonplace habit of looking at men and things is not one of them. He is a master of a most remarkable and attractive style,—sometimes, indeed, he seems to be the servant of it. His book, therefore, deserves to be read, and will be read. And yet, unless we are much mistaken, it is but its author's preliminary canter in the field of criticism.'

The NATIONAL OBSERVER.—'This book, in many respects brilliant, unsatisfactory in not a few, is remarkable in all. . . . It is but rarely that you fall in with so choice and desirable an example of the printer's craft. . . . The author's style, the author's point of view, above all the author's ever present personality, bind these fragments into a sufficiently perceptible and intelligible whole. . . . Mr. Henley's style is not equable, nor serene, nor classic. Rather is it full of surprises, restless and capricious, with moments of immense power and dazzling brilliance.'

The SPEAKER.—'A good book of criticism. . . . Mr. Henley has much in common with modern French criticism. There is something of the same robustness of tone, magisterial finality of deliverance, uncompromising utterance of personal conviction, something also of the same strong and close grip of his subject. . . . He claims for himself "an honest regard for letters"; we may concede to him also other good qualities—sincerity, knowledge, and strength. His judgments are in the main clear-sighted, sane, humane, and generous.'

The ATHENÆUM.—'The exceeding liveliness of his style, his fondness for epigram and antithesis, his love of paradox and generalisation, his faculty of adapting old phrases to new uses, and other characteristics of his, attract and delight the reader. . . . He possesses a wide range of reading, real insight, a hearty appreciation of good literature, and a genuine faculty of making just comparisons. A collection of brilliant yet thoughtful observations on authors and books in which there is not a dull line, and which contains much that is at once original and true.'

The ACADEMY (signed Oliver Elton).—'A rare and fine critical perception. . . . It is crammed with good things, and the good things are those of a man who can be both a wit and a poet.'

The BOOK GAZETTE.—'Mr. Henley is one of the most facile and charming writers of prose and verse in some of their guises that we possess. . . . The subjects he has preferred from all others in this volume are in themselves gems, and Mr. Henley has mounted them in a setting of his own design. This design is chaste and elegant, though, indeed, simple and free from ostentation.'

LIVRE MODERNE.—'Un petit livre qui intéressera beaucoup tous les Français qui sont familiers avec la langue anglaise.'

The GRAPHIC.—‘A series of bright, witty, rapid characterisations of literary men, of the present and of the past of our own and other countries.’

The BRITISH WEEKLY (signed J. M. Barrie).—‘Much wit, and here and there aphorisms that one may remember to be met before in newspapers, and wondered who made them. . . . Written in poet’s English. . . . The printing (by the Constables) is a joy to the eye.’

The GUARDIAN.—‘Good criticism, that keenest spur to the enjoyment of good literature, is none so common in this country that we can afford to pass over an addition to it in silence. . . . We cannot but acknowledge that he has put forth a real scheme, that he has tested the writers who have passed before him by real tests, that he has put results of candour and of true, though perhaps not very broad toleration, down in language which is for the most part at once dexterous and definite, at once critical and picturesque, at once sober and yet full of colour.’

The CHURCH REFORMER.—‘A more valuable contribution to literary criticism has not been given to the public for many years. . . . The strength, boldness, and honesty of his judgments are beyond all praise.’

The TABLET.—‘The book has something of the inimitable. There is force, there is selection, there is simplicity without blankness and elaboration without cramp. There is felicity everywhere, and a cleverness which is welcomed the more keenly for its rare companion, an abiding respect for the language in which it barters. . . . Throughout, moreover, there is the distinction which Mr. Coventry Patmore has denied as the attribute of any writer new in the last twenty years; that distinction which being of the aristocracy of letters is in-describable (even by epigram), and is yet very secure.'

The CHRISTIAN LEADER characterises the volume as 'sparkling,' and PEARSON'S WEEKLY as 'charming,' while THE STAR condemns it as 'much overrated.'

The ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE.—'Doubly welcome. It is good in itself, and seems even better than it is by comparison with so much that is either positively or negatively bad. He has something to say about forty authors, from Theocritus to Mr. Austin Dobson, and from Shakespeare to Dickens and Thackeray. He has read widely and well, he has thought for himself, he has the courage of his opinions, and he has a genuine love for all that is best and worthiest in literature. . . . Views and Reviews is a book to be viewed and reviewed by the real lover of literature, not once only, but again and again.'

The SCOTSMAN.—'The pieces are homogeneous with one another, mainly because of the sincerity of Mr. Henley's judgments on literature. . . . They are always earnest and honest, which is as much as to say that they are always interesting. . . . Not only readable from beginning to end (as is rare in a book of collected criticisms), but stimulating and suggestive in no common degree.'

The GLASGOW HERALD.—'If Mr. Henley can be said to belong to any school in literature, it is to the school of reaction in favour of virility and action against namby-pambyism, sentimentality and introspection. . . . Of this school Mr. Henley is out of sight the best all-round stylist.'

The NORTH BRITISH DAILY MAIL.—'Mr. Henley has constructed a work well qualified by its intrinsic merits to take a high place in the world of pure literature. The essays are a delight to read, and they furnish a curriculum through which all students of letters, old and young, may pass with profit.'

The SCOTTISH LEADER.—'His prose technique presents much of the merit, one may say the genius, of his verse ; it has vividness, freshness, concision, boldness, and felicity in epithet.'

The LIVERPOOL DAILY POST.—'The author of these essays claims for himself "an honest regard for letters." He has more than this, being very much of a literary specialist. . . . His utterances are characterised by a directness and a sureness that are quite French in tone, and with him, as with the French critics, the personal conviction is not unpleasantly obtruded.'

The NORTH METROPOLITAN PRESS.—'He who cares for opinions, vigorous and heroic, set forth in a style at once brilliant and convincing, must not miss Views and Reviews.'

The GLASGOW EVENING CITIZEN.—'The author has a fluent and epigrammatic mode of expressing himself which makes his book very readable.'

The PERTHSHIRE ADVERTISER.—'Has no equal for brilliancy of style, condensed genius of expression, and literary grasp.'

The AUSTRALASIAN.—'Exception may be taken to some of Mr. Henley's judgments, but one is struck by their general fairness, honesty and sincerity. Moreover, his literary style possesses a certain piquancy and point which are decidedly attractive.'

The MELBOURNE ARGUS.—'Bright, sparkling, and pointed, in very good, clear, simple English.'

The EUROPEAN MAIL.—'Be his subject what it may, there is a purity of artistic purpose pervading the whole. . . . His readers will find that what he offers them from his stores is deficient neither in savour nor in substance.'

The COLONIES AND INDIA.—'A guide to common-sense in the way of criticism; and not only to common-sense, but to style, to versatility of observation, and to truth in the dissection of mental qualities.'

The NEW YORK TRIBUNE.—'Original, keen, and felicitous. . . . Delicate and discriminating literary taste, and a happy faculty for analysis and comparison.'

The PHILADELPHIA LEDGER.—'He interfuses his criticism with the thought, the expressions, the personal glow of the author he is discussing.'

The BOSTON TIMES.—'Keen analysis, clever characterisation, and delightful expression.'

The CHICAGO TIMES.—'Thoughtful, vigorous, and stimulative.'

The SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE.—'No more keen and pungent criticism has been printed in these days.'

The SPECTATOR says 'the author is a genuine poet . . . there is freshness in all he writes, and music in much of it, and, what is perhaps rarer, a clear eye for outline and colour, and character in a good deal of it. . . . Mr. Henley's keenness of vision, freshness of feeling, and capacity for song are unmistakeable.'

For the SATURDAY REVIEW 'the ring of genuine and virile humanity is more singular in this volume than its clever workmanship.' It further commends 'his lusty vigour, his spirited ring, his touch of wholesome plainness and freshness.'

The ATHENÆUM discusses at length his 'realism, that is something more than pre-Raphaelite,' and notes his 'fine and winning kind of Rabelaisian heartiness,' and his 'manly and heroic expression of the temper of the sufferer.'

The UNIVERSAL REVIEW.—'It is poetry, not merely measured prose or successfully jangled verse. . . . Neither the fancy nor the melody of the verse forms the charm of the book, though there is enough of both to make the fortune of many a minor poet. The real excellence rather consists in the kindly philosophy, strong, yet tender withal, which breathes from these pages—the words of a man who has seen both the gaiety and the suffering of life, who has had his share in each, and who now looks tolerantly or bravely at happiness or pain.'

The ACADEMY.—'Mr. Henley's treatment of the Hospital theme . . . is powerful, genuine, and manly throughout. . . . Through the Dantesque world of his infirmary the joy of a strong life runs ever like a stream. . . . Most of the poems in the Life and Death section are love-songs, warm and throbbing from the heart.'

The ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE describes the volume as 'wholesome phantasy, wholesome feeling, wholesome human affection, expressed in adequate form. . . . The Hospital section is the literary picture of a section of human suffering which has not before found its artist. There is here the result of a direct experience by one who knows what to say, what to indicate, what to leave unsaid.'

The CRITIC (New York) thinks 'Mr. Henley the easy achiever of all he essays to do,' and signals out especially the 'jocosery, the grotesquery, and daintiness of form' of the BRIC-A-BRAC section.

The SCOTSMAN says 'the collection is one over which the lover of poetry will linger . . . for its natural simplicity and directness of feeling, its careful, choice, and harmonious handling of language.'

The WEEKLY REGISTER says of the Hospital poems, 'they may be painful sometimes, but there is a tenderness in them which is educative to the most fastidious.'

The SCOTTISH LEADER holds the book 'to combine that realism of actual and detailed description with that obscure essence of feeling, held captive by the right words, which is the eternal distinction between prose and poetry. . . . Curiously and memorably vivid, full of deft phrasing, and perfectly free from prosaism.'

The GLASGOW HERALD notes the 'terse and vivid suggestion of landscape and natural features . . . the dignity and beauty of the Rondeaux.'

The SCOTS MAGAZINE commends the 'felicitous union of vigorous thinking with artistic deftness . . . the robust and spirited tone, the purity and grace of diction.'

MERRY ENGLAND remarks that 'Mr. Henley, before writing his verses, has made a great sweeping movement, which has cleared out of his way all the methods and manners surrounding the practice of poetry—not merely the weak and large old traditions ostentatiously set aside by Wordsworth, but all the smaller conventionalities that are so constantly and imperceptibly accumulating. . . . A poem which, as usual with Mr. Henley, tells the truth, and tells it with vital sincerity.'

The MANCHESTER GUARDIAN observes: 'In a not inconsiderable reading of contemporary verse the two difficulties which we have observed as chiefly besetting the poet are—first, the difficulty of being forcible without being extravagant or grotesque, original without being far-fetched ; and, secondly, the difficulty of feeling and showing the restraint and discipline of literary sense and form without being mannered, bloodless, and unreal. Mr. Henley appears to us to have mastered both these in a very uncommon degree.'

Finally, the PALL MALL GAZETTE is of opinion that this 'is a horrible, fascinating, and wrong, yet rightly done, little book—a book which no one should be advised to read, and which no one would be content to have missed.'

LYRA HEROICA

AN ANTHOLOGY SELECTED FROM THE BEST

NINETEENTH CENTURIES.

The ANTI-JACOBIN.—‘It is a body of poetry in which everything that goes to make up human life is exhibited in a spacious, lofty, noble, and therefore essentially heroic light. Its ditties of “the camp, the court, the grove,”—its songs of love and war, of sorrow and gladness, of passion and devotion, of country and religion, one and all are the product of a muse that “nothing common does or mean,” but that dwells habitually in presence of the larger aspects and issues of things. Mr. Henley modestly christens his volume “A Book of Verse for Boys”; and, although there is nothing puerile about it, by all means let boys read it, for it is the kind of reading which will help to make them men.’

The SPECTATOR, November 21, 1891.—'No higher aim could well be than that which Mr. Henley has put before himself. His own words will best express it :—"To set forth, as only art can, the beauty and the joy of living, the beauty and the blessedness of death, the glory of battle and adventure, the nobility of devotion—to a cause, an ideal, a passion even—the dignity of resistance, the sacred quality of patriotism, that is my ambition here." His selection is, on the whole, as good as can be.'

The WORLD, November 25, 1891.—'When we had picked all the holes we could in Mr. Henley's anthology, there would still be enough left to stir all the boys' hearts in the kingdom as by trumpet.'

The GUARDIAN, November 18, 1891.—'Mr. Henley's book, if not without predecessors, is very markedly distinguished from them. In part this distinction is one of form. The author's dedication runs, "To Walter Blaikie, artist, printer, my part in this book," and if Mr. Blaikie is a member of the firm of T. & A. Constable, the printers of the book, and has superintended the production of the volume, he certainly has deserved Mr. Henley's gratitude. Print, paper, and arrangement are all beautiful, and the book is the lightest in proportion to its size which we have ever handled from any modern press. All this we note with real pleasure, and yet it sinks into insignificance beside the fact that Mr. Henley has brought to the task of selection an instinct alike for poetry and for chivalry which seems to us quite wonderfully, and even unerringly, right. There is not a poem in the volume which sinks below the level of true poetry considered as a work of art, and there is not a poem which does not breathe something of the spirit of that fine verse of Scott's which Mr. Henley has taken as his motto.'

The SATURDAY REVIEW, November 7, 1891.—'A very fine book, which will, we hope, help to keep the blood of many English boys from the wretched and morbid stagnation of modernity.'

The SCOTTISH LEADER.—'The ideal gift-book of the year.'

The NATIONAL OBSERVER.—'On the whole the most representative and the most inspiring anthology with which we are acquainted.'

The GLASGOW HERALD.—'Mr. Henley has done his work admirably—we may even say perfectly.'

The STAR, October 29, 1891.—'This perfectly lovely volume. Though Mr. Henley's selection is but another proof of his love for battle (as of the Scriptural war-horse that crieth " Ha ! Ha !" among the javelins), it is proof also that he loves good poetry no less.'

The DUBLIN EVENING MAIL.—'Edited with admirable critical judgment and conscientious care.'

The DAILY GRAPHIC.—'A selection which all boys should and most boys will appreciate.'

The BRITISH WEEKLY, November 19, 1891.—‘A collection of the noblest verse in our language that has value for theme, and beginning with Shakespeare, it does not leave off until it has sampled Mr. Kipling. Lyra Heroica is a rare good book ; there is nothing else of the kind in our language ; and the boy who has to wait more than three calendar months for it ought to tell them at the local bookshop to put it down to his father’s account.’

LOUISE CHANDLER MOULTON, in the Boston U.S.A. Herald of Sunday, November 15.—‘One of the best anthologies by which literature has ever been enriched.’

The EDUCATIONAL REVIEW.—‘This book should be looked at by all who wish to make a handsome present to a boy ; they will be persuaded to choose it.’

The SCOTSMAN.—‘Never was a better book of the kind put together.’

The LEEDS MERCURY.—‘The book is one which all lovers of poetry will appreciate.’

The PALL MALL GAZETTE.—‘Mr. Henley has done the work as well as anybody else could have done it, and perhaps better than most. . . . Every boy ought to have this book, and most men.’

The MANCHESTER GUARDIAN.—‘New anthologies are almost the most delightful of new books to cut and, in an irresponsible fashion, to criticise. It is delightful to find one's favourite lyrics valued as one would have them ; delightful also to find the reverse, and to feel indignantly sure that one respectable man of letters at least has shown less taste than we. In looking through Mr. Henley's Lyra Heroica, the former delight is felt more than the latter, and that is the highest praise that a critic made of flesh and blood and human dislikes and likings can give to a new collection of the kind.'

The EDINBURGH MEDICAL JOURNAL.—' He has mixed songs of battle, of love, constancy, and patriotism so well that even those who are boys no longer may be stirred and heartened.'

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—' Worthy to be placed on the same shelf as our "Golden Treasures." . . . Though admirably adapted to stimulate courage and patriotism in the young, it will be equally welcome to the adult.'

The SPEAKER.—' Mr. Henley's is a very fine ambition, and it will hardly be denied that his is a splendid book of verse.'

The NORTH BRITISH DAILY MAIL.—' May be commended unreservedly.'

The TABLET.—' Take it all in all, as a present for boys, and for men for that matter, Lyra Heroica, printed with perfection and handsomely bound, is a book among books, an anthology among anthologies.'

The ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE.—' In the eyes of that curious Radical section to whom all war, for whatever purpose, on behalf of whatever principle, is a crime, this book must seem the most dangerous and most immoral that was ever put into the hands of youth ; for it sings the glory of noble and honourable war. Its note is a note of healthy and resolute defiance —the defiance of liberty to bondage, of duty to disgrace, of courage to misfortune.'

The CRITIC (New York), December 5, 1891.—' Selected with the taste and judgment of a poet.'

The NORTHERN DAILY NEWS, December 18, 1891.—' Mr. Henley's taste is robust and catholic, and offers a welcome to many spirited lyrics that are not generally considered classical.'

The GRAPHIC, December 26, 1891.—' By far the best of the books of verse for boys. . . . The judgment shown throughout in selection and editing is excellent. The volume should be in the hands of every English boy.'

The NATIONAL REVIEW.—' A manly book, which should delight manly boys and manly men as well.'

The IRISH DAILY INDEPENDENT, January 4, 1892.—' Mr. Henley's Lyra Heroica is like the blast of a trumpet, and it would be hard indeed to make a milksop of a lad nourished on these noble numbers.'

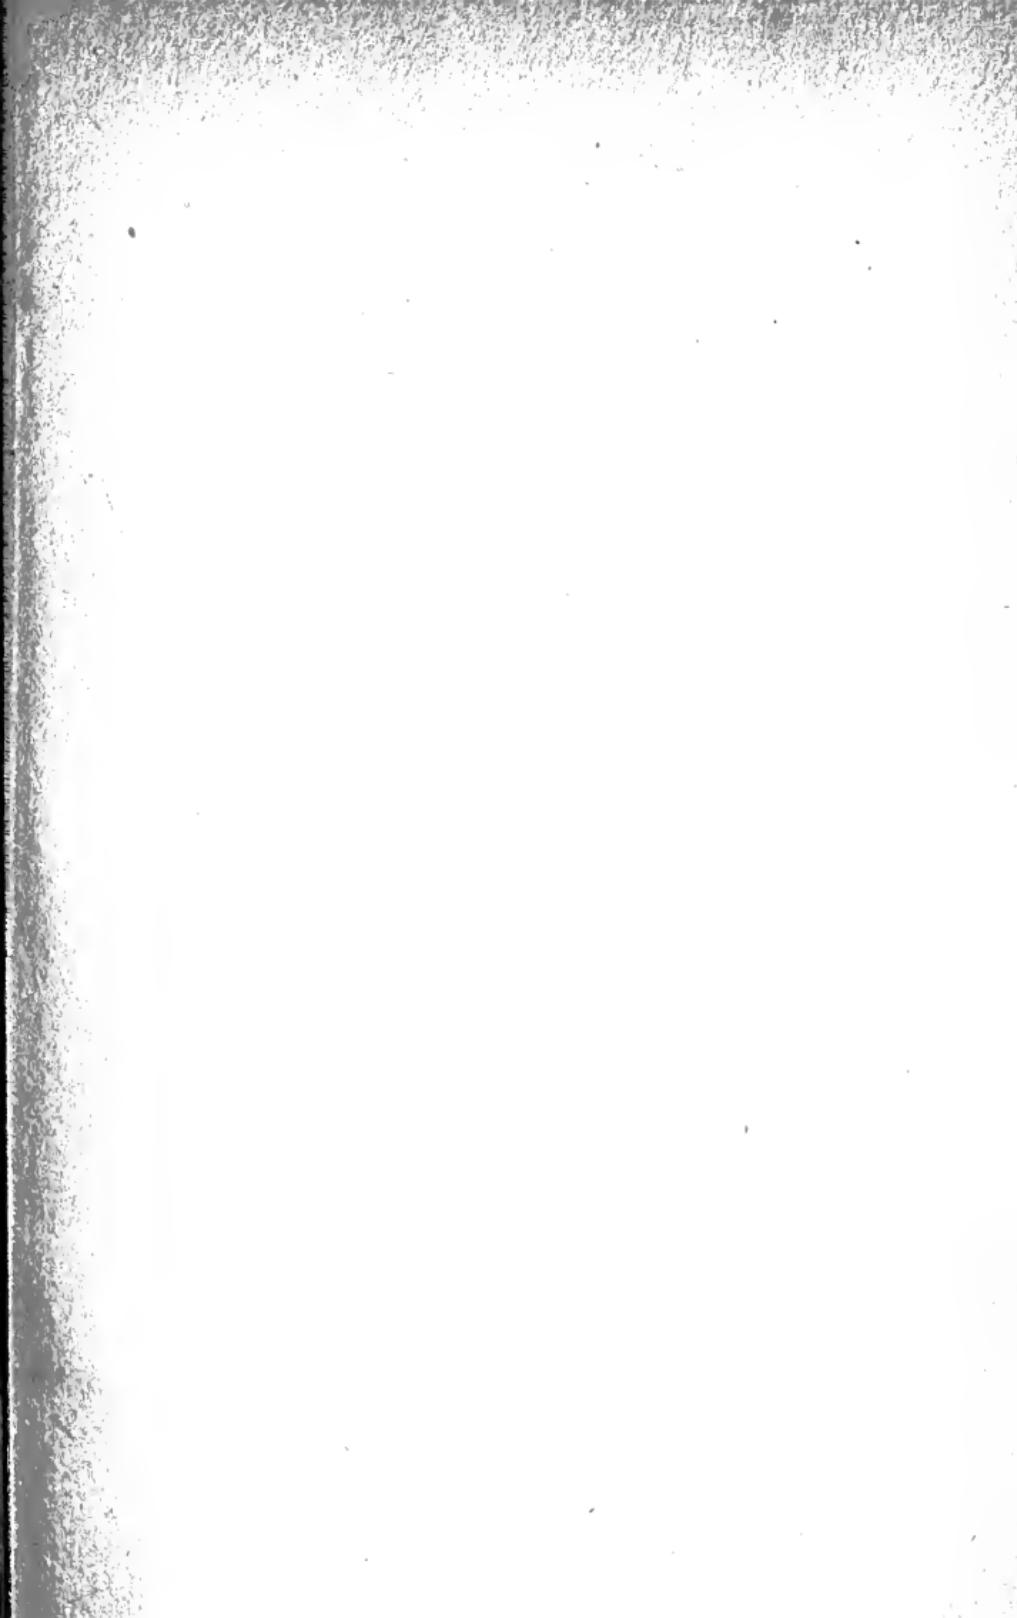

SYLVIA'S JOURNAL, March 1892.—' Beyond comparison the noblest anthology of stirring poems and ballads in the English language—probably in any language. . . . A more nobly planned and excellently carried out volume it were hard to name. Paper, binding, and print (the last a triumph of the printer's art) are all that could be wished. If any of my readers have brothers to whom they wish to give a book, let me advise them to get Lyra Heroica. If the brothers do not like it (though I go bail they will), the volume is one which any English maiden will be glad enough to have upon her shelf.'
